

Quality over Price

There are many factors involved when talking prices, for example different brand names, features, delivery and set up, additional moves, warranty, service after the sale to mention a few. Keep in mind that just because someone is quoting you a real low price doesn't mean you are getting a good deal. You can run into many expensive problems when buying cheap hot tubs that will cost you a lot more in money and headaches than the price of investing in a high quality tub.

A hot tubs may look pretty with lots of jets but the building material and equipment is of very poor quality. Many people just look at the price and do not take into consideration anything else. Hey, it looks cool, the jets work and the price is right. Let's buy it, then one year later they are freaking because everything is falling apart or not working. No Lucite manufactured into the shell itself which means it will start cracking after your first winter. Poor brand name pumps, cheap hoses and jets, poorly insulated, substandard electrical system, (not Balboa). I can go on and on but it's really up to you to do your homework before you buy.

So do your homework and don't get hustled by anybody. Take your time and ask a lot of questions, you need to feel confident in your purchase before you spend your hard earned money. You want Hot Tubbing to be a wonderful experience and a hot tub made of poor quality materials and equipment will eventually ruin that experience.
